'The Disappearing Streets and Lost Communities of Glasgow' by Catriona Haine

When researching our family history, we often want to see, and even visit, the streets our ancestors lived on. But between the late 19th century and early 20th century, considerable numbers of Glasgow street names were changed making finding them more challenging. Then in the late 20th century, many of those streets, along with the communities that inhabited them, were lost altogether, as the wrecking ball of 'slum clearances' hit the city. This talk focuses on two of those lost communities, Anderston and Hutchesontown, and the people that lived there in the late 19th century, how their lives were interwoven with the industry and the history of the streets they inhabited, as well as how to pinpoint those lost Glasgow streets in the modern day.

Based in the west of Scotland, professional genealogist Catriona Haine specialises in Scottish family history research as well as the Irish diaspora and their origins in Ireland. Catriona graduated with a master's degree in Genealogy from the University of Strathclyde, having carried out extensive research into 19th century Scottish asylum and poor law history and the lives of the pauper patients removed from Glasgow Royal Asylum at Gartnavel.

Catriona can be contacted through her MarpleCat Genealogy website: www.MarpleCat.com.

'Discovering the Resurrection Men of Kelso' by Andrew Armstrong

Website: relativelyscottish.com

The investigation of the history of a local hotel takes an unexpected turn. Andrew explains how pre-census records can be used to tell some dramatic stories of times long gone. Andrew Armstrong is a Scottish genealogist based in Kelso in the south of Scotland. Through his website RelativelyScottish.com he takes a special interest in older family history especially in Dumfries & Galloway and the Scottish Borders. He has been a regular presenter at Scottish Indexes Conferences right from the beginning almost 4 years ago.

'Lust, Lucre and Lybell: An 18th Century Scottish Soap Opera' by Dianne Brydon

Dianne Brydon has used skills learned from her Masters in Historical Geography - and Scottish Indexes Conferences - to research her various family histories. She has been researching her Guild family story for five years, whenever she can get to Scotland, where she has sneezed through many dusty bundles of archival documents to piece together their colourful story.

With her father, in 2017 Dianne published their family history The Stalwart Brydons: From Scotland to Galt to Portage La Prairie. Since then, she has written articles and given talks for family history/genealogy/local history groups in both Scotland and Canada. She is currently President of the British Isles Family History Society of Greater Ottawa.

Meetings are held in Kilmarnock most weeks and there is a speaker once a month. Visitors are welcome but should email in advance to check details.

There is a monthly “drop-in” Session at St Ninian’s Library in Stirling, when we introduce the fascination of genealogy to new researchers starting out on their journey, and offer advice to anyone suffering from ‘brick wall’ syndrome.

We produce a Journal twice a year, and since lockdown the committee has introduced a monthly newsletter, ‘Share your Story’, to keep members feeling connected to the Society.

British Isles Family History Society of Greater Ottawa (BIFHSGO)

BIFHSGO is the leading Canadian family history society with a focus on the British Isles.

Our members connect with like-minded researchers to learn effective, trusted research methods and best practices, to share their knowledge, and to inspire other family historians with our presentations and publications. Our quarterly journal, Anglo-Celtic Roots, is filled with stories written by our members and provides excellent examples for others researching and writing their own family histories.

BIFHSGO has a Name Index which provides information from our ongoing research on home children, military ancestors and migration, focusing on British Isles and Canadian ancestry.

Our monthly meetings can be attended in person or online. They are recorded and can be accessed by members following the meeting date. We always welcome visitors and new members.

Our next virtual Conference, Leaving their Scottish Homes: What were they thinking?, will be held October 28 – 29, 2023. For more information and registration, please visit our Website <https://www.bifhsgo.ca/2023-conference>.
